It is admitted that the Mississippi levees will go by the board, so far as the present congress is concerned.

A MEETING of the national republican committee has been called, to meet in Chicago on Thursday, May 27th.

A TEST vote in the Springfield convention to-day at noon, showed the Grant strength to be 351, the opposition 251—Grant just 100 ahead of all the rest. That settles it.

PRESIDENT HAYES has nominated Horace Maynard, Tennessee, for postmaster-general; James Longstreet, Georgia, minister to Turkey; David M. Key, United States district judge for the eastern and middle districts of Tennessee.

SENATOR BAYARD is said to be firm in expressing his conviction that congress should not adjourn until some method is adopted for counting the next electoral vote. It is a significant fact that there is an increasing number of republicans who are opposed to doing anything in regard to the electoral count, and who are espousing the doctrine that the vice-president should count the vote. Garfield is engaged in propagating this heresy.

SENATOR GORDON'S resignation, although a surprise to the country, was evidently premeditated and carefully planned. Ex-Governor Joseph E. Brown was appointed to fill the vacancy, and accepted at once. The resignation of a United States senator in the midst of such a brilliant and useful career, is without precedent. Senator Gordon is only forty-eight years old. He was educated at the University of Georgia, and practiced law a short time before the war. He entered the confederate army as captain of infantry, rose to the rank of major-general and to the command of the second army corps, commanded one wing of Lee's army at Appomattox courthouse, and was wounded in battle eight times; after the war he took a conspicuous part in state and national politics. He was elected to the United States senate to succeed Joshua Hill, a republican, and took his seat March 4th, 1873; was re-elected, and the term will expire March 3d, 1885, nearly five years hence. We have not heard that he is in ill health, that he is engaged in business requiring his attention, or that he is an aspirant for any other office. An explanation of his retirement from the United States senate will be awaited with great interest. Ex-Gov. J. O. Brown is a man of consummate ability and tact, but well up in years. He can be described in the fewest words by only saying: "He is a long headed man."

Six hundred workmen will be put to work on the Vicksburg, Shreveport and Texas railroad about the first of next month, and the road from Monroe to Arcadia will be completed and in running order by the first of October. Work will then be commenced at the Shreveport end, and pushed rapidly forward, and it is expected that before eighteen months elapse the whole road will be completed to Shreveport, and Vicksburg will have an all rail communication to Weatherford, Texas, about seven hundred miles.—Vicksburg Commercial.

This will give Memphis an outlet to Texas without touching the Iron Mountain road, and we may expect that our merchants will not be slow to avail themselves of it. Vicksburg can be reached from here either by rail or river; the latter, however, will be cheaper and usually preferable. At Shreveport the new line will connect with the Texas and Pacific railroad system, and at Longview, the Great Northern and International railroad is reached. This latter road has at present two termini, one at Houston and the other at Austin. Austin will soon be connected with San Antonio, and thus Memphis will be enabled to reach almost every desirable part of Texas in a year or two, without traveling over any unfriendly roads. The house of B. J. Semmes & Co. received an order this morning from Bandera, fifty miles northwest of San Antonio, and the goods will have to be shipped by way of New Orleans and Indianola on account of the discriminations against Memphis, encountered on the most direct route by mail. We cannot complain of this, but we can look out for ourselves.

This is a big day in Springfield, Illinois. It will decide whether Grant is to declare that he is not a candidate for the presidency, or by silence continue in the field. It is a solemn time for the republicans, but a pleasant day for democrats. We can look on with the utmost satisfaction lest matters go as they may. Sympathy in the south is rather for Grant on account of his candid utterances in our favor, but this feeling is connected with the impression that if the republicans will just be kind enough to nominate the ex-president, we will have a much easier time in electing the Cincinnati nominee, whoever he may be. Grant could have greatly strengthened his cause in the north, if he had on his return to Cairo and Bloomington denounced the southern people as a set of unrepentant rebels who need watching and more strong government. John Sherman, the malignant, James G. Blaine, the roaring demagogue, Edmunds, the able but cold-blooded and prejudiced statesman, and Conkling, the unscrupulous, would have questioned the sincerity and loyalty of the southern people for the sake of applause and support in the north. Grant, however, spoke of us kindly and truthfully, and whilst it may be said that this was nothing more than he should have done, it is such a rare thing for a republican in public life to do us justice, that an instance of the kind produces a feeling of gratitude and respect—a feeling, however, not akin to a desire or willingness to see a third-term experiment. The dispatches received last night indicate that the friends of Grant are in the ascendancy, and that the noisy crowd from Chicago do not even make a respectable demonstration. The old enthusiasm for Grant overwhelmed every other candidate. There is little doubt at this writing that Illinois will be almost solid for the ex-president.

EX-GOVERNOR AND EX-UNITED STATES SENATOR HENRY S. FORTIE died at his home near Nashville May 19th, at the advanced age of quite eighty years. At the time of his death he was the superintendent of the United States mint at New Orleans. During his life he was a prominent actor in every great political movement, and an active member of almost every political party. He was the antagonist of Jefferson Davis and Gen. McNutt, of Mississippi, and on the issue of secession, defeated Davis as the representative of the Union. He was a bond-paying democrat, and pursued Gen. McNutt, of Mississippi, who was for repudiation, and when repudiation was successful he left Mississippi in disgust and rage, and returned to California. He was for the south in the recent war, and was a member of the confederate congress from the fifth district of Tennessee. But he opposed Jefferson Davis until his opposition led him to leave the south and go to the north. Since the war he acted with the republican party, more from his antipathy to the democrats than love of republican measures. Unquestionably he was an earnest advocate and defender of nationality, and a bitter opponent of secession. But even in this, the ruling sentiment of his political life, he crossed his own path. Yet he never wavered in the vigor and intensity of his spirit. He was all or nothing. With him it was duck or no dinner, and he was often hungry. In scholarly accomplishments he has no superior in public life, and among college professors few equals. There was not a day passed on which he failed to read Horace, or Cicero, or Homer. For the last ten years he was working assiduously in writing a history of Venice, and for this work read and re-read in the mother language of that city, everything relating to its history and its marvelous commercial prosperity, and its equally marvelous decline. Take him all in all, as a public man, as a scholar, as a senator, and as a citizen, he was the most extraordinary character the south has produced since the death of John Randolph, of Roanoke.

RICHMOND.
The Conservatives Instruct for the Two-Third Rule

RICHMOND, Va., May 20.—The conservative convention adopted resolutions instructing the delegates to Cincinnati to adhere to the two-thirds rule. Also a resolution that the conservative party of Virginia is affiliated with the national democratic party, and would not support any one for elector who did not declare in favor of the nominee of the national democratic convention. Adjourned.

Deadwood Delegates Uninstructed, but Counted for Blaine.

FARGO, D. T., May 19.—The territorial convention held here to-day elected Porter Warner, of Deadwood, and C. T. McCoy, of Bonhomme, as delegates. They go uninstructed, but are understood to be as Blaine for first choice.

In his speech at the meetings of the conservatives at Bridgewater house, yesterday, Beaconsfield, it is stated, admitted great surprise he felt at the result of the election. He took on himself part of the blame for the dissolution of parliament, but said that party-whips were not blameless, as the defeat of the conservatives was greatly due to the lamentable deficiencies in organization, which he trusted would be remedied in future, and with that view, he suggested the appointment of a committee, with W. J. Smith as chairman. He said that rumors of his retirement from the leadership of his party were unfounded.

SAN FRANCISCO.
The Workingmen's Convention Slightly Inharmonious

SAN FRANCISCO, May 20.—At the afternoon session the workingmen's convention refused to consider the adoption of Kearney's letter as the sense of the convention, and after several attempts to get through the resolutions looking to the appointment of delegates to the national greenback and labor convention, pledging to Thurman the democratic element of the convention, a motion was carried to adjourn till evening. The opponents mostly declined to vote, and the convention then broke up in disorder. The greenback element assembled and organized a new convention, and at midnight entered upon the appointment of a committee on platform, constitution, and resolutions, with prospects of an all night session.

What Congress Has Not Done.

Washington Special.
The larger part of the senate is anxious to adjourn, but this wish is not unanimously held, and unless business is pushed without interruption it will be impossible to get through by the day named. The sundry civil and the general deficiency bills, the river and harbor, the agricultural appropriation and the little deficiency bill, which was vetoed by the president, have got to be considered by both houses. The postoffice bill with the star service appropriation is before the senate, and will probably go back to the house. There promises to be a very lively debate in the senate, in which complaint will be made of the disgraceful appearance of the star route lobby. On the whole, there is a good deal of necessary business still to be done, and after all many things which representatives have promised their constituents will be neglected. Mr. Robinson, of New Jersey, for instance is understood to have engaged himself to advocate and procure the passage of a measure for the investigation and control by the general government of the liquor traffic. His silence on the subject which during the canvass seemed so near his heart has surprised some of his constituents, who voted for him as a conspicuous leader in the temperance cause. The Mississippi levees will also go by the board. Several contested election cases will go over. The tariff will not be debated. There will be no new bankrupt law. The fishery business will not be touched. Secretary Evarts has not yet sent in the papers with his recommendations. The Indians will not be transferred to the war department, and the celebrated Indian territory bill will not be acted on, to the grief of that noble friend of the Indians and depopulator of Missouri, Senator Vest. There will be no new mint. The new pension law will fail. Lastly, the very necessary measure for counting the electoral vote, which ought to be passed before this session dissolves, will fail, which will be a real calamity, or it is scarcely possible that a measure can be agreed on next winter. It will be seen that there are some measure of importance which ought to have the attention of congress at this session.

THE EXPRESS COMPANIES.
An Important Decision by Justice Harlan at Indianapolis.
Courier-Journal, 19.
It was announced yesterday that the Short-line and the Louisville, New Albany and Chicago roads would hereafter do their own express business, thus virtually carrying out the plans which led to the organization of the Union Express company. The status of the Adams was not settled by that determination, and could not be, as the matter had been taken to the courts where it was to be settled.

A hearing of the case of the Adams Express company vs. the Louisville, New Albany and Chicago railway company has been had before Justice Harlan, of the United States supreme court. The order of Justice Harlan is that the Adams Express company, until the final hearing of the cause, be left undisturbed in its transaction of business on the road; if any question arises in the meantime as to the compensation for services, it shall be referred to the court for settlement.

The decree of the court is to maintain the restraining order, retaining the Adams express company on the road, directing the railroad company to carry its freight and messengers, and to charge reasonable rates for the service.

Yung Kwai, the only remaining Chinese student at the high school at Springfield, Mass., out of several who began their course there, and who has been awarded the honor of salutatorian for graduation, has been ordered to Hartford by the Chinese authorities for instruction in the Chinese language. This order, if enforced, as it probably will be, will deprive him of the remainder of the course at Springfield, and prevent him from filling his part as salutatorian. Attempts are being made, however, to have the order revoked.

Spofford vs. Kellogg.

WASHINGTON, May 18th.—The senate had another day of Kellogg-Spofford. To-morrow Senator Butler, of South Carolina, will speak against the resolutions of the Senate committee and in favor of retaining Kellogg in the senate. All this does not look like an early adjournment. Senator Bayard is ready with his marshals' law, and attempted to bring it up in the morning hour. Senator Conkling intimated to him that he could not pass the bill without considerable discussion. As soon as the contested election case can take a rest, Mr. Bayard will call up his bill.

Progress of the Tehuantepec Railroad in Mexico.

It is stated that there are 400 men at work on the Tehuantepec railroad, and the first ten kilometers of the road are well advanced. Preliminary surveys by the advanced engineering corps have been carried out over thirty miles, and the line is located for about eight miles from Coatzacoalcas to the Chimalapa river (the first stream crossed), which is 150 feet wide. The pier at Coatzacoalcas for unloading supplies is almost finished; a branch track is laid its entire length. As soon as the Chimalapa is crossed the road leaves the sand hills and the swampy lowlands, and strikes a line of gravelly hills, which will supply an abundance of the best possible material for a road bed; from this point the route will be through a healthy, fertile and heavily wooded country, in which, for a long distance, no engineering difficulties of any account will be encountered.

Talk of the President Makers.

Washington Correspondence N. Y. Herald.
There are no new developments in presidential matters. The time has come when everybody is quite certain of his candidate's nomination, and it is remarkable that nobody is quite so certain as the third termers and the Tilden men. The determination of the Chicago third term bolters to claim their proportionate share of delegates from Cook county in the state convention is thought to be fatal to a solid third term delegation from Illinois, as the president will work so as to give the Blaine and Washburne men their shares of the state delegation. Mr. Washburne's declaration of friendship for the ex-president and the third term policy is understood here not to affect the delegates favorable to him in Illinois, who are anti-third termers to a man, and took up Mr. Washburne, not because they liked the ex-president, but because the liked Mr. Washburne.
